The American Diabetes Association® (ADA) is committed to innovation and breakthrough research that will improve the lives of all people living with diabetes—and bring us closer to a cure.

One of the most powerful ways ADA research impacts lives is through the Standards of Care in Diabetes (Standards of Care). Published annually, this trusted resource provides doctors and other health care professionals with the most current, evidence-based guidance on how to prevent, diagnose, and manage diabetes. From medications and lifestyle support to emerging technologies, the Standards of Care help ensure that people with diabetes receive the most effective and personalized care available today.

Thanks to the ADA's leadership in research, these guidelines are recognized as the gold standard in diabetes care—setting the benchmark for quality treatment around the world.

Beyond the Standards of Care, the ADA supports innovative diabetes research through our Pathway to Stop Diabetes® (Pathway) program. This program brings together the brightest minds to transform diabetes research and funds projects that promote access to care in resource-limited communities.

Our Pathway research program is responsible for:

Currently, the ADA Research Programs team manages a portfolio of
